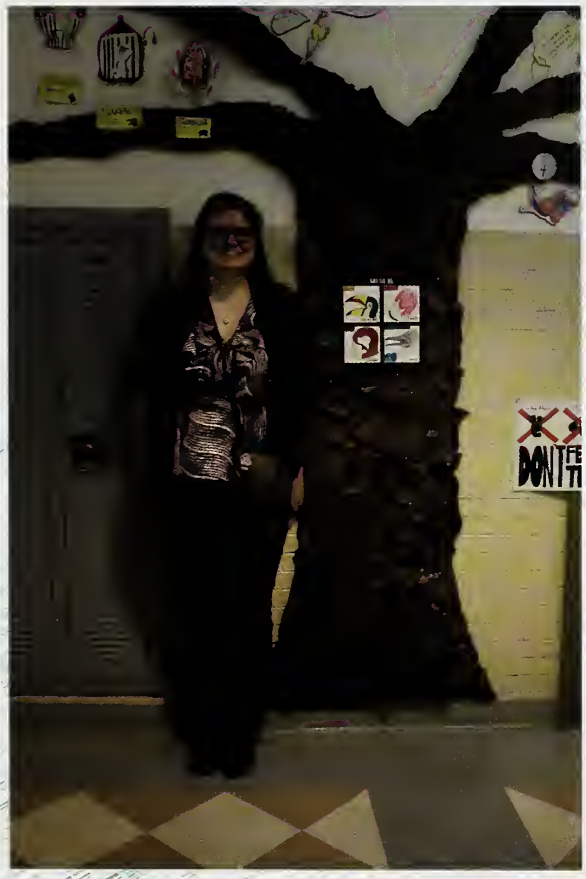
Welcome to our yearbook!

When coming up for the theme of our yearbook, we looked over the experiences that we have had during our time at UNCSA. We remembered a time when Ethan Stiefel was the dean of the dance program, Dr. Rothkopf was the interim dean of the music program, the academic program was on trimester systems, and most importantly, when the school was just called NCSA. We thought about it, and realized that the only suitable theme for this yearbook was redefined. Every change the school makes affects us as artists and with change we learn new things about ourselves as people as well. We hope this yearbook captures the essence of what this year has been in contrast to years past. We know that we ourselves have truly been

REDEFINED.

-Caroline and Allegra

"This yearbook has been filled with many early mornings and late nights, endless proofing, and the dreaded six o'clock computer restart. But hey, we got free pizza! I would like to thank each and every member of our yearbook staff team for working so hard, and putting up with my consistent yelling about font size and style. Also, want to send a big thank you out to Mr. Bo for putting up with me for four whole years, Seriously, I can't thank you all enough."
-Allegra



"I didn't really know what I was getting myself into when I agreed to be a yearbook editor this year. I was excited to be a badass editor with Mr. Bo and Allegra and make a quality yearbook. Despite all the waking up early, technological frustration, and endless hours of proofing, I've had a great time. I hope that everyone can appreciate how much work has gone into this yearbook and ignore the few errors we (hopefully didn't) make. Thank you to ALL of the yearbook staff except Eric Mount. You guys are a hard-working bunch and the best staff an editor could ask for!"
-Caroline

Opening Weekend

Peer Leaders

Peer Leaders are students selected by Residence Life who serve as role models and mentors to the community. They meet with Residence Hall Coordinators to implement positive changes and conduct hall meetings. In addition, they come to school early for a week of intensive training, make nifty hall decorations, work desk shifts, and catch the occasional cockroach.

Christy Motta and Claire Kendall work on their "Wonderful World of Sanford 1" decorations with the assistance of crew member, Emily Simpson.

Crew

Crew Members are students who are chosen to help create and set up events like dances, lock-ins, and off campus activities. These students also serve as student orientation leaders during opening weekend to welcome new students to the UNCSA campus.

Connor Matz and Sophie Chevallier are ready on board to begin planning events for the school year.

Student Leadership Board

The Student Leadership Board consists of a diverse group of students from each art form that collaborate to make the school a better and more united place. Every Wednesday, the Board meets to discuss concerns of the students and changes they would like to see around campus. They also plan many events to unify each grade level.

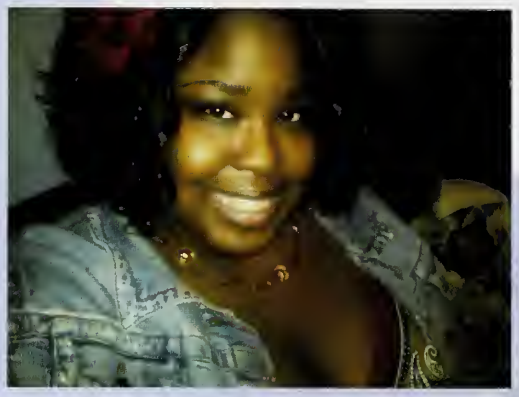
Members of the SLB:

Freshmen:
Copeland Byers, Alejandro Mojica, Lizzie Ruprecht, and Delany Ruth.

Sophomore:
Sarah Huesman, Eric Mount, Emily Simpson, and Stephanie Singletary

Juniors:
Abby Cockrell, Noah Granger, Lily Higgins, Savannah Simgletary, Brittany Tyson.

Seniors:
Ally Fion, Jennie Lee, Will McVay, Christy Motta, Ellen Oliver, Patty Sigmon, Taylor Speagle, and Hayden Stark.



Kelli "Perky" Perkins is the Student Leadership Board Advisor.

Brittany Tyson Is the Co-Chair of the Student Leadership Board.

Left: Jill Lane links the Student Leadership Board to higher powers within the school and faculty.

What changes do you wish to see around the UNCSA campus?

"My favorite part about being a member of the Student Leadership Board is all the free food!"
~Eric Mount

"I would like to see a better relationship between Res Life and the students."
~Will Mcvay

"I hope to see students having more say in regulations and procedures around campus."
~Brittany Tyson

"I would like to see a more united and connected campus community."
~Emily Simpson

I would like to help create a more involved, inclusive environment at UNCSA.
~Ally Fion, Senior Chair

"I would like to see a better relationship between commuters and residential students."
~Noah Granger

Yearbook...

You better be on our good side.

To be on yearbook requires:
-Impecable focus
-Being technologically savvy
-The ability to be in three places at once
-The willingness to get up early every Wednesday
-The ability to make things more interesting than they actually are
-Traveling with your camera at all times
-Yew half two no how too spel.
-The ability to be witty on the spot

Without us, your precious high school memories would be lost forever.

Allegra and Caroline pretend to be inspired by last year's yearbook.

Whitney gets in the zone.

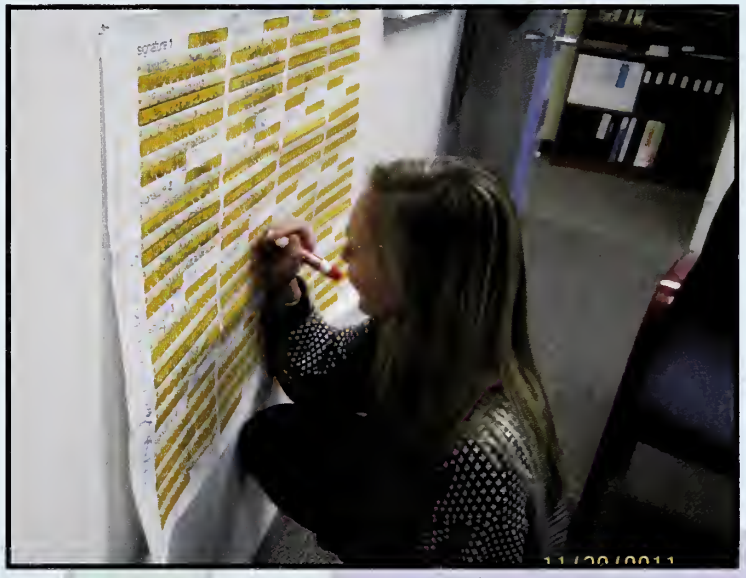
Yearbook staff working hard...nothing new.

Yearbook editors bossing around their staff.

For another desperate attempt to get pictures for this page, Hailey Russel, Shelby Finnie, and Mr. Bo pose in front of the yearbook poster.

Brodie Wray and Audrey Thompson being witty on the spot.

Creating the Game Plan.

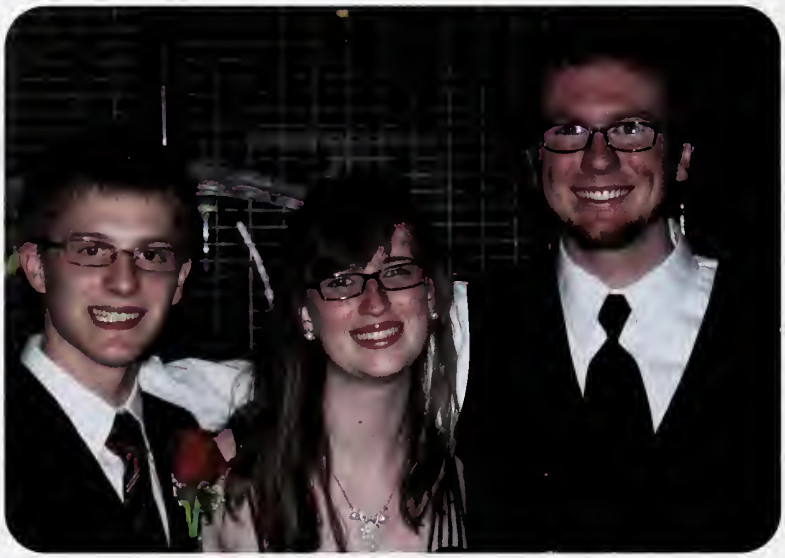


Eric Mount doing what he does best.

From 3:00 to curfew Wednesday night, when everyone else in the school is relaxing after their exams, the Yearbook staff (or at least the dedicated ones) are hard at work making this yearbook. We have to have 20 pages completed, proofed and turned in by Intensive Arts, which starts in about an hour. Our Yearbook "exam" usually consists of people running around, taking pictures, pretending that these pictures are of other things, and writing clever captions for your entertainment. I realize this might not sound very pleasant but...WE GET PIZZA!

Prom 2011

Every year, UNCSA high schoolers put on their cutest dresses and classiest suits and celebrate Prom. Last year, UNCSA celebrated prom at the Children's Museum with plenty of music, dancing, food, and sweat. When the night started to wind down, many students made the annual post-Prom IHOP trip to refuel after an exhaustingly fun night of UNCSA Prom 2011.



The UNCSA tradition Beaux Arts always lives up to its reputation of a weekend filled with non-stop fun, free food, and crazy costumes. The annual Drag Show takes place on Friday, followed by the Carnival on the Hill on Saturday afternoon. The Carnival winds down into the all school barbecue. People then return to their rooms to put on their most creative (and most scandalous) costumes for the BeauxArts Ball.

Residents vs. Commuters

Commuter students are allowed to cruise around Winston-Salem in their own cars. Eric Mount was chosen by the students to win "The Coolest Car" award for his awesome bike!

Every Sunday morning, Leah Benoit teaches a yoga class for residential students in the Gallery.

Brodie Wray bonds with her family while palying on a swingset in her backyard.

At home, Betsy cuddles with her furry companions, which are not allowed in the residential halls.

It is a party every night with your friends in the residential halls. Students voted Austin Kellenberger, Will Champion, and Andreas Hill (right) for the "Biggest Party Room" in the guys' halls. Rachel Norris and Alexa Yeames (left) in the girls' halls.

Around Winston

Winston-Salem is where we spend the majority of our high school lives, so we learn to love it. Although it is a small town, there are plenty of cool hang-outs and scrumptious restaraunts.

Josh Hall and Jacky Burak went up a hill...in Winston-Salem.

Kobe, Japan

Yoshiko Iwai

"I'm from Kobe, Japan and am currently in contemporary. Kobe is a beautiful harbor and great city, close to Osaka which is the second biggest city in Japan. The culture is different in every way and it is really a day's worth of flying, but I am grateful to be able to experience, literally, the best of both worlds."

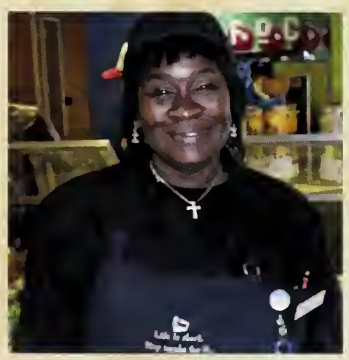
Singapore

Bramina Braet

"My hometown is called Singapore. It's a little island in Asia, but it's not in China. It's a very city-like place with lots of architectural buildings everywhere and it has a great mix of different cultures and races living there."

Cafeteria-isms

"...two dollars. Where's my two dollars?"



"Oh no. Swipe again, baby."

Cafeteria Recipes

The artistic talents of UNCSA students extend from the Stevens Center, to studios, to the cafeteria. Many of our students take advantage of the cafeteria food and formulate creative, delicious recipes. Check it.

Sofie Schreiber poses with her BurritoForTheWin.

Directions: Microwave a tortilla, black beans, and shredded cheese for 30 seconds. Roll into a burrito and consume with a smile.

CJ Burroughs, on a good hair day, shows off her Brushchetta Delicacy.

Directions: Split a dinner roll in half and toast on light. Place a ripe tomato on the dinner roll with feta cheese crumbled to perfection. Add a touch of olive oil, if you would like.

Dean Bisoca can't keep his eyes off of his HoneyButterCrunch.

Directions: Mix plain yogurt, Cinnabon Cereal, peanut butter, and honey into a bowl. Refrain from salivating.

Michael Gallagher displays his Tower of Smiles with style.

Directions: Make a white bread sandwich filled with a veggie burger patty and pineapple slices. Adorn the top of the sandwich with a mushroom-bean-cheese smiley face. Lay the sandwich on a bed of pizza drizzled with ranch.

Exam Week: Fall 2011

Immediately following Thanksgiving break, Fall term exams served as the main source of stress for the week of November 28th - Decmber 1st. Luckily, Edwin Martinat and the crew event staff set up a "Pancake Study Break" that took place in the dining hall to relieve students of their stress. This event allowed them to enjoy delicious pancakes and have a good time!

We're not just artists... We're Smartists!

UNCSA is known for supplying its students with great training. What sets it over the top is that students can practice their art at the same place they go to school. 3rd floor Gray is where all the high school students, no matter what their art, come together to learn.

Third floor Gray gets really crowded between classes.

Kevin Zheng and Emily Lumston enjoy Mrs. Streblow's AP English Literature class.

As the winter winds blew in, the temperatures at UNCSA dropped, but spirits remained high. During "Froze Arts 2012" (hosted by Edwin Martinat), students had the exciting opportunity to go ice skating and curl up with some hot chocolate to watch a midnight movie. Although snow was scarce this year, students had the chance to frollick in the little bit that UNCSA endured.

Madeline and Maryrose are goofballs.

Delaney and Annelise stay warm.

Four Year Seniors 2008- 2012

Four years ago, a group of twenty-one freshman came to the NCSA campus for the first time. Together they managed to survive a year of proofs in Geometry, endless reading guides in World History, and balancing chemical equations in Physical Science. As the years flew by, students came and went, but the freshman survivors stayed strong. They witnessed the change from NCSA to UNCSA and were the last class to partake in Dr. Haigh's infamous poetry project. When senior year rolled around only six students from the 2009 freshman class remained, four dancers and two musicians. So congratulations seniors, you finally made it!

The UNCSA Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Michael Dodds, is a fast paced ensemble made up of all of our school's wonderful wind players. The students in this group must be willing to work hard and learn fast, but at the same time have fun with all the entertaining rep they get to play. This season's rep included works from Bernstein, Ticheli, Whitacre, Shostakovich, and many more!

Every Wednesday, the college and high school musicians of UNCSA gather in Crawford Hall for Performance Hour. Dr. Winkelman is greeted by thunderous applause as he enters and introduces the week's performers. Though no one is required to perform, there always manages to be a plethora of performers almost every week. Other weeks when this doesn't happen, however, Performance Hour is cancelled. Musicians also enjoy utilizing UNCSA's other small-scale performance hall, Hood Hall. It's cozy setting and unique acoustics provide an intimate setting for practicing, recording, and performing.

Ballet

Lets begin with a poem...

As Ethan Stiefel said his final goodbye,
Brenda Daniels knew that she was on stand by.
She added new changes in many ways,
From no "thank you's" at the end of class to Honors Fridays.
Many new candidates made their mark;
The students voted on who had the best spark.
George, Keith, Jim, and Robert all had their chance,
So who will be the next Dean of Dance?

Along with a new dean underway,
We have also signed a contract with the Theatre of American Ballet.
Our new partnership with the JKO School might just be our new special tool.
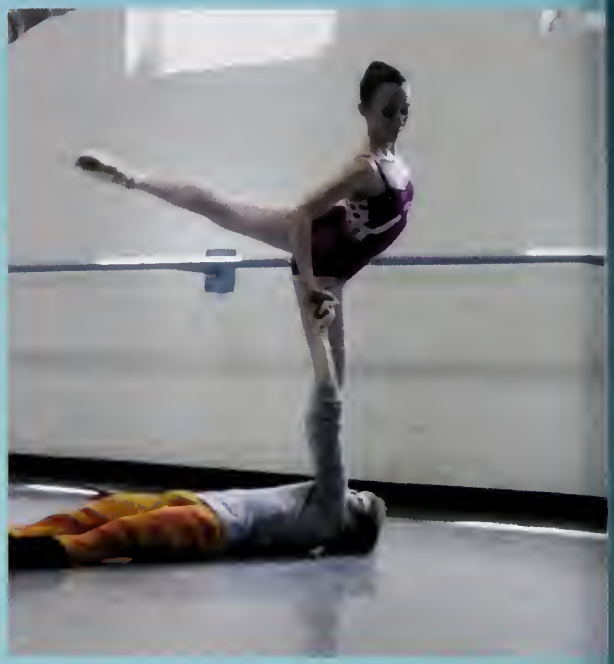
Although this transition is off to a slow start,
once it follows through,
it will give us more apreciation for our great art.



Christy Motta and Ethan Schweitzer-Gaslin execute a difficult promenade.

What changes have occured within the Ballet levels?

Samantha Griffin and Savannah Singletary stretch before their Wednesday morning technique class

This year, a contemporary class has been added to the BL1 curriculum.

The BL 3's have some fun before the Friday pointe class.

Due to the lack of underclassmen guys, BG1 does not exist this year.

The BL3 Friday Pointe class has been changed to a variations class.

Abby Cockrell and Ethan Schweitzer-Gaslin perform in Peter and the Wolf, a UNCSA tradition.

Emma White and Ashler Uebele show off their "fish"

Ashley Canupp and Paige Amicon rest a little before class begins

Chicken Friday's are no more. Now the upperclassmen are separated into three Hornors classes, named after honorable alumni, "Hayden", Duncan", and "Noble".

Contemporary Dance

For the first time in history, the M1 class is mostly high school students. From college auditions, to finishing compositional studies before curfew, Contemporary dancers are some of the busiest high schoolers on campus. Three bowls-three blueberries. Using the backspace. CORE. Proprioception. Bah-da ba-ba-ba-da-aah.

Dean Biosca, a third year contemporary dancer, excitely welcomes students to the dance building.

Yoshiko Iwai, Mariah Reives, Kaylynne Leggett, Kaitlyn Burke, Kacey Katzenmeyer, and Kellyn Thornburg rock out in pink and red leotards for Valentines Day.

Top: Kaylynne Leggett is estactic to go to Studio A and practice good technique with Trish Casey.

Places! Places Please!

Along with supplying some of the greatest training in the country, UNCSA offers its students opportunities to perform in a professional atomosphere. The dancers in the School of Dance are on stage at least 3 times a year showing the public what they can do. Some of the performances incude: Emerging Choreographers, Fall Dance, Nutcracker, Peter and the Wolf, Winter Dance, Winter Workshop, Spring Dance, Spring Workshop and other shows made up of student choreography.

"When you perform you are out of your self larger and more potent, more beautiful.
You are for minutes heroic.
This is glory on earth.
And it is yours for the taking."

-Agnes de Mille

Intensive Arts!

Intensive Arts: the two week period where students have a break from academics and an opportunity to focus on their art. Some students get to relax during this time and only have 1 class a day, while others are bombarded with 6 classes a day and practically driven crazy. The best thing about Intensive Arts though is the wonderful events that go on during this time. From the extraordinary workshops to the powerful performances, students, faculty, and friends are able to enjoy the wonderful talent that we are blessed with at UNCSA.

Bottom Right: Bill Fick speaks with the VA I's and II's and their parents during an Intensive Arts workshop.

A word from the Chancellor about the changes this years::

This has been a great and momentous year for UNCSA. The college converted to two semesters, the faculty voted for a ranking system for the first time in the history of the state and we have managed to give over 300 performances with 10% less money from the state! And all of that has a lot to do with your hard-working faculty and staff and you-our brilliant students. When you return to our alma mater much will have changed, because this summer shall break ground for our four new buildings, the most important of which is a library that will sit atop the magic hill on which UNCSA was built.

Thanks to all of the Upper Administration team for all of their hard work for creating another great year at UNCSA!

Where is this place?

We all know and love our favorite places on campus but can you recognize these places around campus?

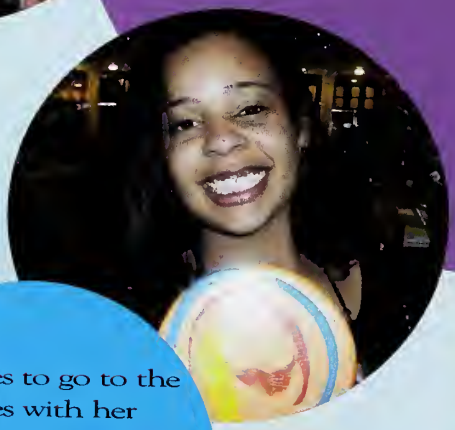
What do you like to do when you're not working behind the scenes at UNCSA?

Mr. Hoover likes to take care of his three dogs in his free time.

Edwin Martinat plays "Mother Ginger" in UNCSA's, The Nutcracker.

Pearlie loves to shop in her free time.

Ambi likes to explore Winston, read, shop, and attend Zumba classes and UNCSA performances.



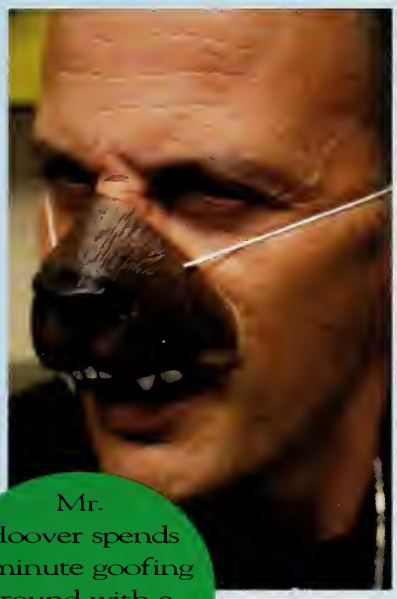
Leah likes to go to the movies with her husband, volunteer, bake, read, take walks, and laugh in her spare time.

David likes to play with his kids in his free time.

Mr. Snyder likes to ride his motorcyle.

Behind the Scenes

Life at UNCSA is a production and we could not perform it without our crew. Without the help of custodians, cafeteria employees, residence hall staff and Mr. Hoover, our lives here at UNCSA would not function smoothly. But what are they really like behind the scenes?



Mr. Hoover spends a minute goofing around with a Halloween mask

The Pickle Jar staff is hard at work!

Thanks to all of these hard workers for keeping our lives as organized as possible!

Freshmen

Freshman year....The beginning of a wonderful journey that we call "High School". For most Freshmen, this year is full of changes, but for our UNCSA Freshman, this year is full of many surprises! So how has being at UNCSA changed you?
